OPPORTUNITIES

12th-19th May is National Doughnut Week. Yes, that's right. Doughnuts have their own week... And it's for good reason. Businesses including bakers, coffee shops, and offices take part and sell lots of delicious doughnuts to raise funds for The Children's Trust. So far, £588,344 has been raised.

This week, we're thinking about how many different job roles go into the creation, advertising, sale and charity fundraising of a doughnut to raise money.

The first job role to think about are Bakers. One important thing you need to know about this role is that they work really early mornings to bake their goods to sell for the day. You can expect to earn around £26,000 and work around 40 hours per week.

Baking not really your thing? That's ok! Let's consider the bakery owner who decides to sign up for National Doughnut Week. They may own their business as a Franchise Owner or a Managing Director. They have a lot of responsibility, work long hours and can risk not earning any money if their business doesn't do well. However, if it does do well, they can make LOTS of money! An example of a business owner that has done well is Gym Shark.

In order for the business to do well, the owner will need to invest in marketing. Marketing managers plan how to promote products, services or brands and oversee all marketing activity. You can earn up to £65,000 and work 37 hours per week.

Lastly, the bakery that has signed up to be part of National Doughnut Week would be speaking to a Charity Fundraiser to arrange all the details. Charity fundraisers organise events and activities to encourage people to donate to causes and organisations.

JOB OF THE WEEK

This week's video focuses on the job role of an Yacht Deckhand.
