Dear All,

Coronavirus - Further Update

Following on from our email earlier today, the government has now announced:

1. That anyone with a persistent cough or high temperature should self-isolate for seven days. Given the time of year, this will obviously apply to a number of students over the coming weeks, regardless of whether or not they have coronavirus. Thank you in advance for helping us to uphold this measure, we appreciate that this will have ramifications for a number of families. Please follow the normal procedure for notifying the school of an absence.
2. A ban on all school trips abroad from this Friday. This means that, regrettably, we will now need to cancel the Sixth Form ski trip to Austria and the Geography trip to Iceland, both of which were scheduled to take place during the Easter holiday. We have been in touch with our insurers who tell us that they will be "sympathetic" to any claims the school makes and we are therefore hopeful that we will be able to reclaim any money that families have already spent. We will be in touch in due course with further details. We shall continue to review on an ongoing basis, all other school trips scheduled to take place within the UK according to government advice.

Other than that, the information as laid out in our earlier email below still stands. Please be assured that we will continue to update you as the situation develops.

God bless,

James Kibble
